KILLING OF JIM KERRIGAN.

PERHAPS HIS FRIEND, BUT MAYBE JUST HEAT AND LIQUOR DID IT.

Jim Morrison and Kerrigan Drank Ali Day in "Pleasant Valley," Where the Freight Cars Lie, and Morrison Hit Him Before He Died Saw Death in His Face Then and Fled

Jim Kerrigan, freight hustler, died suddenly in the New York Central yard at Eleventh avenue and Thirtieth street yesterday after-The police call the place "Pleasant Valley" because of many dreary and violent things that have happened there. The death of Kerrigan was not of the sort that will change its reputation. A preliminary circumstance was that Jim Morrison had hit Kerrigan in the face, and a subsequent circumstance was that as soon as Morrison found that Kerrigan was went away hurriedly and has since avoided the police, who write him down a murderer.

and square-jawed German, who has been on the force about three years. When complaints were received at the Fifth street station that the gang was making trouble at Avenue A and Eleventh street Ruth was sent to clear them out. He began middly.

"You better scatter," he warned the gang.
Instead of obeying the injunction the gang, Instead of obeying the injunction the gang, twenty or more of them, made a rush for him. When he attempted to swing his club it was grabbed from behind and wrested away, his legs were kicked so that he fell on his knees and blow after blow was rained on his head till he pulled his revolver and fired four shots into the crowd. That scattered his assailants, and as Ruth got on his feet again he caught Kinsella, who was reeling from a bullet which had passed through his left breast under the heart. Morrison, like Kerrigan, was a freight handler. They received on Saturday the money they had earned during the week. On Satur-day night they spent much of it. They spent it in one another's company all the way from Twenty-third street to Thirty-fourth street Twenty-third street to Thirty-fourth street in Tenth and Eleventh avenues. As the night went on they clung together on the street corners and sang and dared the universe to meet them in mortal combat. Late in the morning they sleept for a while in the back room of Blue Billy's. They sleet with their chairs tilted back against the wall side by side and with their heads nestled together until Blue Billy came in to take charge for the Sunday trade and put them out. After that they determined to keep out of the places of such persons and obtained such refreshment as they needed at side doors, in Morrison's dinner pall, which they carried to the shade of the flat cars on the south side of the yard for the discussion of its contents Pleasant Valley is a quiet place on Sunday and there are few trains moving. From the fire escapes and the roof and the front door steps of the Pleasant Valley tenements to which chief Byrnes used to go when he wanted to find Dutch Harmer or any of the big burglars of twenty years ago, the populace regarded Morrison with wild amusement mingled with envy. The brakemen on the few cars that were being shifted about the yard called to them now and then, and Kerrigan and Morrison waved their can in acknowledgment and shouted back. They seemed to have reached the height of friendship.

About the middle of the yards arguing with some emphasis, Kerrigan was gesturing toward Eleventh avenue most urgently. Morrison, who was as tall and thin as Kerrigan, was gesturing urgently toward. in Tenth and Eleventh avenues. As the night which had passed should be the heart.

with some emphasis. Kerrigan was gesturing toward Eleventh avenue most urgently. Morrison, who was as tall and thin as Kerrigan was stumpy, was pointing urgently toward Tenth avenue. The discussion grew louder and then became no longer friendly. Kerrigan reached up his fist and shook it under Morrison's chin. Morrison awung his long arm around and struck Kerrigan on the jaw. Kerrigan fell in a heap and Morrison staggered over him and then returned to look down at him stupidly.

stupidly. Her, Jim," he said, "get up." But Kerri-"Hey, Jim," he said, "get up." But Kerrigan did not stir.
"Get up," said Morrison, "you're not a dead one yet." He kicked his friend, gently at first and then with some force. Kerrigan did not show any sign of knowing it. Morrison leaned over him and tried unsteadily to lift him. Then he turned him over, took a long look at his face, then turned and ran across the network of tracks as though all the terrors of Hades were after him. In a moment he had disappeared from the sight of Pleasant Valley, up Tenth avenue.

peared from the sight of Pleasant Valley, up Tenth avenue.

Tim Kelly and another brakeman left the top of the train on which they had been working and went over to see why Morrison had run away from Kerrigan. They found that Kerrigan was dead. Folks came from the tenements and the sidewalks and joined them in looking at the body. After a while Policeman Collinge came into the throng. They told him the story.

"I did," said Kelly.

TRIED TO KILL A MAINE GUIDE Attempt to Murder Herman Templeton, Well

INGHAM. Me., Sept. 2.-An attempt was made a few days ago to murder Herman Temple ton, a guide in the Moosehead region and also a game warden. He has been so vigilant in the enmity of the guides. Templeton was on the west branch of the Penobscot during the week, and as he wished to make rapid progress was paddling his cance. When a short distance from the shore he felt a peculiar sensation of the wind at the back of his head. Then he hard the report of a gun. He dropped flat ne nard the report or a gun. He dropped flat in the cance, and as he saw the muzzle of a ride sticking out from the heavy growth he discharged his revolver in that direction. As soon as possible he started to the shore. When he took up his paddle, having dropped his revolver, another shot came from an unknown source. This time he was unable to return the shot, but pressed toward shore, hoping to find his would-be assassin.

KILLED IN A STREET FIGHT. Stiletto.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Thomas Codello, a farmhand employed by Whitelaw Reid, was killed to-night in a street fight by Francisco Margotto of 51 Spring street. The two men met in Bronx street at 8:30 o'clock and began to quarrel. Cedello picked up a baseball bat that was lying in the street and hit Margotto on the head with it. Margotto drew a stiletto from his pocket and stabbed Codello in the heart, killing him instantly.

Margotto ran to his home. Policeman Harmon and Jacob Welles followed him. Welles remained outside and Harmon tried the door. It was looked, Harmon burst the door in and searched the house without finding Margotto until he reached the second floor. There, in a bedroom, he found Margotto, but the Italian attempted to escape by jumping from the second-story window.

As he struck the ground Welles shouted to him to surrender and threatened to shoot him if he tried to escape. Margotto ran from Spring street to Mott street and then Welles fired two shots at him. The second bullet hit Margotto in the left hip and brought him to the ground. He was taken to the jail, where his wound was dreesed by Dr. Purdy. He was then looked up.

MAY HAVE BEEN MURDERED. Sportsman's Body Found in the Water With

MAT'S LANDING, N. J., Sept. 2.—The inquest in the supposed murder of Jonathan Harris, a well-known sportsman of Belle Plains, whose body was pulled ashore by seine fishermen yesterday morning, will be held at Tuckahoe tomorrow. It was learned that the young man had left his home early on Friday morning on his bicycle. His dog followed and he carried a gun with which to shoot reed birds. He was last seen alive shortly after 10 o'clock that morning near where his body was found. His gunning coat hung upon a stake and his dog lay near it. The body when found had been in the water but a short time. There was a hole under the right eye. On his arms and chest were marks and the left cheek was discolored and swollen.

The autopsy showed that the marks on the arms and chest were made by crabs and fishes.
The doctors could not agree as to what caused the hole under the eye, or as to whether Harris's death was due to drowning. Harris's blcycle

VOBODY KNOWS HOW GAS POISONING KILLED JOSEPH BRODECK.

PUZZLE IN THIS DEATH.

That's What Coroners' Physician Says He Died were held in heavy ball by Magistrate Meade Of, and Adds That It May Have Been in the Yorkville police court yesterday for examination, and the Fifth street police now Chronic-No Trace of Escaping Gas, but a Tale of Dysentery Where Brodeck Died.

Joseph Brodeck, an employee of E. L. Kelogg & Co., publishers, of 61 East Ninth street, died suddenly at Tom O'Rourke's Delevan Edward Pepenking of 184 Avenue A, Francis Hotel early yesterday morning. O'Rourke and the employees of the hotel, which is the Egan of 622 East Seventeenth street. Their resort of most of the people financially interested principal grievance seemed to be yesterday that one "copper" single-handed had bested n prizefighting in this city, say that the man died of weakness following a prolonged attack of dysentery. Coroners' physician Williams, who made an autopsy on the body, said that and square-lawed German, who has been on Brodeck died of poisoning by illuminating gas and that he had none of the symptoms of dysen tery, although there was evidence that he suffered from chronic nephritis. Dr. George E. Doty of 216 West Thirtyeighth street, who was called to the hotel and reached it a few moments after the man's death says he does not know what the man died of and made no inquiry to find out when he had ascertained the fact of death. He is certain, however, that there was no smell of gas in the room or any other superficial evidence that the man had been poisoned by gas. According to the story told by O'Rourke and his head bellboy Richardson, Brodeck went to the hotel at 1 o'clock yesterday morn-

Louis Rosbe, Dominico Langella and Joseph Annunciato quarrelled over a game of cards last night in the saloon of Michael Capatana in Elton street, Brooklyn. The saloon keeper put them out and they started to walk down the street. when they came hear the corner of Elton street and Liberty avenue they stopped to watch a fire in the stable of Henry Giynn in which five horses were burned to death. The quarrel was renewed and Annunciato pulled out a razor and drew it across Rosbe's throat. He severed the jugular vein and Rosbe fell to the sidewalk. Annunciato and Langella then fied. When they came near the corner of Elton and his head beliboy Richardson, Brodeck went to the hotel at 1 o'clock yesterday morning and a room was assigned to him. Two hours later Richardson went to O'Rourke and said: "There's a man in the bathroom who seems to be suffering a great deal. I don't know what to do about him."

"Take him to his room," said O'Rourke.

A minute or two later Richardson returned and said that he thought Brodeck was going to die. A physician was sent for. There was some delay because the first doctor who was called refused to go out at that hour in the morning. The second, Dr. Doly, responded at once, but when he reached the hotel he found that Brodeck was dead. The body was sent to the Morgue. Dr. Williams made an autopsy there late yesterday afternoon. In his report to the Coroner he said that the cause of death was asphysiation by illuminating gas. He added the word "suicide," following it with a question mark. When Dr. Williams was told that the people about the hotel told a story about the man's death which precluded the possibility of poisoning by illuminating gas, he said:

"My report was based altogether upon the conditions in which I found all the organs of the body. In all cases of illuminating gas, poisoning there is a decided cherry red discoloration of the organs. It is always accepted as prima facie evidence of gas poisoning. I never knew it to be the basis for a mistaken autopsy I remember that once there was a dispute about it. I said then that I thought it possible that the man might have suffered from chronic gas poisoning, caused by a leaky fixture near which he had been sleeping for months, perhaps. The people in the Coroners' office laughed and said that perjury was a great deal better explanation than a new aliment like chronic gas poisoning."

The dead man's connection with E. L. Kellogg & the believed, they have confirmed my former opinion and have added a new chapter to what we know about illuminating gas poisoning."

The dead man's connection with E. L. Kellogg & the construction in his we know about illuminating gas poisoning."
The dead man's connection with E. L. Kellogg & Co. was learned from a letter found in his pocket. Another sealed letter addressed simply "Ethel Brodech" was turned over to the Coroner.

Alberto was not his right name. She accused him of marrying illegally. This led to a quarrel, and she left him a short time ago in Clinton and came here to live with her sister, Mrs. Goyette Beaudrix. About 10 o'clock last night, while Mr. and Mrs. Beaudrix were seated in the kitchen, Alberto appeared. Mrs. Alberto was frightened and fied to another room. He reassured her by calling to her and she came back. He sat beside her and they began to quarrel. Beaudrix foresaw trouble and went for a policeman. While he was gone Alberto drew a razor and, seizing his wife by the head, cut her throat. He then made his escape. The police were notified and an ambulance was called. Mrs. Alberto died on the way to the hospital. Alberto has not been seen since. WARRANT FOR GYPSY WOMAN. She Is Charged With Cruelty to a Fifteen

Year-Old Negro Girl. PLAINFIELD, N. J., Sept. 2.-Justice Marsh of this town has issued a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. William Harrison, the head of the tribe of gypsies that had been camping near here for the past two weeks. The warrant charges Mrs. Harrison with cruelty to a fifteen-year-old negro girl, Clara Jackson, who was with the tribe. The complainant is Mrs. Lizzie Benner, the wife of John Benner, proprietor of Benner's hotel on South avenue, near which the gypsies camped. Last week the Jackson girl ran into the hotel She declared that she had been beaten with a chair, and that she had been struck and slashed at with a butcher knife. The child was cut and bleeding, and Mrs. Benner attended to her wounds and told her to remain at the hotel, where she would be protected. As soon as the Harrisons heard that the girl was at the hotel William Harrison went to Scotch Plains and got a search warrant from Justice Clark. With this he visited the hotel, got the child and departed.

Then Mrs. Benner swore out the warrant Then Mrs. Benner swore out the warrant but when the constable went to arrest Mrs. Harrison he found that the gypsies had moved their camp. It was supposed that they had gone to Madison, N. J., where the elder Harrison has his tribe of gypsies, and Roundsman Mattox has his tribe of systems, and the woman. The elder Harrison said that she had not been near there. He promised, however, to have the woman and the child in Plainfield during the coming week. He said that the child had been enticed away from her home in Baltimore six years ago and that her father had tried to gether back, but had failed.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 2.—Tong Ho is the name of a well-to-do Chinaman who arrived in Jacksonville from New York yeshim. The State Engineer gave the contract for the Whites Corner road, from Hamburg to the city limits of Buffalo, to Chambers & Casey of this city for $23.430. The bid of William T. Leighton for the same work was $22,800. Mr. Leighton is a resident of Brighton and is wealthy. He contends that he conformed strictly with the law in making his bid. In his affidavit Mr. Leighton says that on Aug. 10 last he rode from Rochester to Batavia with the State Engineer, and that Mr. Bond represented to him that the contract had not been let and that he stood a chance of getting it. Notwithstanding this Mr. Leighton alleges that the next day he received a letter from Mr. Bond, which had been sent before the conference on the train, and informing him that Chambers & Casey had the contract.

C., the same time that Tong received his. The cases should have come before Com-missioner Goodell yesterday, but Mr. Goodell had been sent before the conterence on the train, and informing him that Chambers & Casey had the contract.

Mr. Leighton alleges that the State Engineer violated that part of the Good Roads law requiring the letting of the contracts to the low-est responsible bidder inasmuch as his bid was the lowest. He also alleges that favoritism was show Chambers & Casey in the matter. He also says that similar applications are to be made in other parts of the State, where it is alleged that certain contractors have obtained contracts illegally through favoritism shown them by the State Engineer. missioner Goodell yesterday, but Mr. Goodell failed to appear and the cases were continued until Tuesday.

It is reported here that schooner loads of Chinamen are being shipped into lower east Florida from Nassau and other places in the West Inides and Cuba. It is rumored also that there is an "underground channel," as it were, arranged to smuggle them into the United States by this route. They arrive at places on the east coast where it is thinly inhabited, are then smuggled into the interior, making their way then by ones and twos to this city and other places in the State and thence westward by way of Montgomery. The United States officers are investigating the matter and think that they have struck up against a big conspiracy in this line.

AMERICAN WORKMEN LEAVE MEXICO. Money Toe Cheap and Living Too High to Be Attractive to Them.

DURANGO, Mexico, Sept 2-Most of the American expert roller-mill workmen who were brought here several weeks ago from were brought here several weeks ago from Indiana and Illinois to work in the iron and steel plants have returned to their former homes. The experiment is a failure and the few remaining American workmen will leave Mexico as soon as they can save enough money to do so. The wages paid are high from a Mexican point of view, but do not compare with those paid in the United States for similar labor when the cheapness of Mexican money and the high cost of living in Mexico are considered.

NEW FIELDS FOR FIGHTERS.

The Sport May Flourish Soon in New Jersey and Connecticut Towns Near New York.

Now that the Horton law is a thing of the past, patrons of the prize ring are giving their attention to places outside of this State where the game will be permitted without opposition rom the authorities. Preparations have been made to pull off bouts in New Jersey Connectlcut, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Maryland. Clubs have already been established at Paterson, Newark, Trenton, Bridgeport, New Haven, Waterbury, Jersey Weehawken and Wilmington. Boxing has been in vogue for the past three years at Bridgeport, Waterbury and New Haven, and many stirring contests have been decided. Jack Rose, who controls most of the boxing exhibitions at Bridgeport and New Haven, says that a number of important contests have been arranged by him, and that the sport will flourish in earnest in these two cities this fall and winter.

The Trenton and Passalo County athletic clubs are two organizations which have been under way for several weeks past. Most of the battles, which have been quite stirring, were well attended. Another club is going to be started in Paterson in a few days. It will be known as the Frie A. C. and Jack Dougherty, the well-known manager of puglists, will be the matchmaker. Before the sport was legalized in this State, New Jersey was the rendezvous for some very interesting scraps. Bob Fitz-simmons fought at Newark under the auspices of the Caledonian A. C. in 1893 and attracted a large crowd. Dougherty is also the matchmaker of the Washington Hill A. C. of Waterbury and has planned several important mills between men of reputation. Dougherty declares that the game will start in earnest within a few weeks at Waterbury and Paterson. The first bout at the Passaic County A. C. will be pulled off on Sept. 17. Tommy Sullivan of Brooklyn and Andy Daly of Boston will be the principals in a 20-round struggle. under way for several weeks past. Most of

be pulled off on Sept. 17. Tommy sunivan be Brooklyn and Andy Daly of Boston will be the principals in a 20-round struggle.

A club somewhat on the lines of the Broadway A. C., but with quarters nearly as large as Madison Square Garden, is spoken of as a possibility in Weehawken in the near future. It is said that Jim Kennedy and Pat Powers will be interested in the venture and that some championship mills will be brought about. The organization in question, it is understood, will be devoted to other kinds of athletics outside of boxing and its house will have a seating capacity of over 8,000. A similar club may be established at Jersey City. Charlie White will be appointed referee of the Weehawken Club as soon as it is organized.

Fights to a finish in private with small gloves will in all-probability take place in Greater New York. Several of these fights have already been arranged and the favored ones will be ripped" relative to the rendezvous in due season. It is not likely that Tom O'Rourke will be identified with any of the new fistic clubs. He said yesterday that thus far he has not made arrangement for a building in any of the above-mentioned cities.

Al McMurray, who is managing Tim Kearns, says that his protege is in good health again and ready to fight any first-class lightweight. Joe Gans and George McFadden are to meet again.
This time the battle will be held at Philadelphia and will be decided before the Penn Art Club next Friday

Billy Lee of Yonkers, who is now in England, has practically matched Tom Broderick, also of Yonkers, against George Dimmy, an English lightweight, who is rapidly coming to the fore in his own country. Jack Everhardt of New Orleans, who went to Eng-land a month ago, is slated to cross arms with Tom freland in London to night. The contest is for twenty rounds. Everhardt says he is in fine condi-

Tim Callahan of Philadelphia says that if he receives expenses he will go to England and meet Ben Jordan before the National Sporting Club.
Callahan is in good condition just now and says that he will be able to fight within six weeks' time. "Spike" Sullivan has received an offer to go to San Prancisco and box a clever lightweight, whose name thus far has not been divulged, before the Olympic A. C. "Spike" says that he will accept, but cannot fight right away, as his hands are not in the best of condition.

Immediately upon his arrival in England, Charley McKeever of Philadelphia called upon Matenmake Bettinson of the National Sporting Club, London, it regard to a battle with "Dido" Plumb, the English middleweight champion. Bettinson told McKeeve that if a match was made he would give the pair chance to right on Oct. 15. Plumb, when notified said he would fight McKeever, but wanted a few days grace, as he expects a battle with Dick Burge to $2.500 a side in the near future.

It is not probable that the National Sporting Club will offer a burse for the contemplated match between Peter Maher and Gus Ruhlin. When Dr. Ordway, the American representative of the noted Baglish club, was seen in reference to the contest he said:

"I have no doubt but that the men will put up a slashing mill, but the London sports will not stand for it unless either man is pitted against an English heavy-weight." Maher and Ruhlin will in all probability accept the offer which they have received to fight at San Francisco.

Manning offers to back Hawkins and "Spider" Kelly against any lightweight in Great Britain, Sammy Kelly against Billy Pilmmer, and Handler with either "Dido" Plumb or any other middleweight, all contests to be for twenty three-minute rounds, the weighing in to be at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the encounter.

The Weather.

The high pressure expanded over the New England and middle Atlantic States yesterday, clearing the weather and causing a brisk southerly breeze, but without any perceptible increase of heat. The low the centre, passing over Minnesota, was drawing warmer weather into all the central States, where the temperature reached between 90 and 100 degrees. YOUNG STUDENTS ACTIVELY PREPAR-ING FOR FOOTBALL SEASON.

The New York Association Will Perfect Ar-rangements Next Week-Every School of Prominence to Enter an Eleven-Rugby High and Trainer's Schools' Strong Teams.

The Executive Committee of the New York Interscholastic Association will hold a meeting next week and then final arrangements for the football season will be made. Officers wil be elected, different committees appointed and a football schedule adopted. It is not definitely known how many teams will enter the struggle for the honors on the gridiron, but there is every reason to believe that the majority of the schools will be represented. In several of the schools the new boys on hand are more promising than some who made the teams last year and in many cases they will take the place of the regula-Capt. Smith and his band of football players of The Bronx school arrived at the school las week, and although it was far from football weather, the regular practice began. A larger number than usual reported for the preliminary training. The outlook is very encouraging in spite of a number of places to fill. Baldwin and Riggs, the guards, will probably be out of the game this year Baldwin will not return to the school, it is said, and Riggs, who will be back, may not play as his family and the faculty are anxious that he should devote his entire attention to study. Dr. Brown of Barnard School has mapped out his plans for the coming season. The preliminary work will be done in the gymnasium. Benjamin, who has made such a great showing at basketball, will probably have charge of the team. When seen last week he said that he scarcely expected to win the championship but that the eleven would make a strong bid for the honor. Fred Wenck and H. Storms wil help coach the youngsters. The school has secured grounds at Fort Lee for outdoor prac-Trinity School, although out of the Inter scholastic Association, will not be out of athletics, in which the rector, Dr. Ullman, is a strong believer, while harmony exists. The wrangling and disputes that prevailed at the school last year thoroughly disgusted him, but the lads that caused all the trouble last year have graduated, and the large number of newcomers are looked upon to agree on everything Thompson has been elected captain of the foot ball team, and the first regular practice will begin at Columbia Oval next week.

The grounds of the Collegiate School, Sev enty-seventh street and West End avenue, are rapidly being put in condition for football practice. The squad this year will consist mostly of new material, but they are a stocky set. The loss of Capt. Hardenberg, who played full back, and Deveraux, who played left half back, will be felt. Both these youngsters go to Columbia University, where they will make good substitutes on the 'Varsity team. Work will begin in about a week and if the boys make a good showing a team will be entered in the championship series.

Columbia Institute intends to take a decided brace this year. The students at the school have never taken a prominent part in athletics and have devoted their time to military exercises and cycling. This year, however, the boys will figure in every line of sport. To a reporter of The Sun Dr. Edwin Fowler said:

"I am pleased to say that Columbia Institute has every prospect for a strong athletic representation for the coming season. It is a little too soon to make any predictions, as the different teams will not be fully organized for a week or so, but the large number of well-built last that have entered and the interest they show in football gives promise of a strong team. E. P. Person, one of our leading instructors will have charge of the football team and will put the boys to practice in another week."

John Finneran of the Knickerbooker A C. will make good substitutes on the 'Varsity and will put the boys to practice in another week."

John Finneran of the Knickerbooker A. C. will again have charge of the gymnasium at De La Salle Institute. It is his intention to develop a strong gymnastic team. Keller, Thorp and Ridder will be back, and as they are gymnasts of no mean ability, they should form a combination hard to beat. There are any number of new candidates for football honors and with those of the old boys back a strong, team should be organized, Keller will probably be elected captain. He played left half back on the team last year and will undoubtedly again fill that position. D. H. Brennan will coach the team and all the work will be done at Jasper field.

Instructor Thompson of the Sachs School, who will again have charge of athletics said Instructor Thompson of the Sachs School, who will again have charge of athletics, said last week that it looks as if the school will be able to place a football team in the field this season. "We can count upon a few good players, but whether we can induce the other boys who are available to take up the sport is a question. At any rate we will have a second team which will play in the Junior series." Chess will be a feature at the school this winter, and who are available to take up the sport is a question. At any rate we will have a second team which will play in the Junior series." Chess will be a feature at the school this winter, and nothing will be left undone to place a strong team in the interscholastic chess tournament. With Prof. Kinlay in charge the prospects in sthictics for the coming season at Wilson-Vail School are brighter than they have been in former years. The school did not enter a football team last year, as most of the players were too light to compete against the heavier teams of the league. Handball tournaments will be played throughout the winter months. The Rugby High School football team will take its first regular practice out doors next Wednesday. The boys will be coached by Thomas, Simpson and Phillips. Stewart, who weighs 165 pounds, is captain. He plays right guard well, rushes hard and low with the ball, and is always found in every play. Davis, a new boy at the school, will perhaps play centre. Although rather light for the position, his play is full of snap and grit, and he manages to get the ball back with precision. Hall, who will play left guard, is another new boy on the team. The tackles are Duffy and O'Brien. The latter is an old player, who blooks hard and tackles low and strong. Duffy is a new boy, but his earnestness makes up for his lack of experience. The end positions will be looked after by Sims and Fletcher. These boys are as good as any school team can boast of They know the game thoroughly and both are fierce and sure tackles. Meyer, Carr and Slitz will be the backs. In these three boys the school has the finest trio in the history of the school. They are all sprinters of high order, the latter being a regular battering ram. His work in this particular calls to mind the famous rushes of Kelly, Princeton's half back in 1896. Outside of the regular league schedule, Manager Clark has arranged games with the leading scholastic teams within sixty miles of this city.

It is doubtful whether Trainers School will be obl has been good and he is expected to hold the position.

Colins will probably play at quarter back. His passing is good, and he gets in the interference and tackles well. The position of full back will be hard to fill, there being few candidates. Wenman is trying for the place, and Wilson might play there; but the latter, being a good man at either tackle or guard, may be placed in either of these positions. Willard and Buck will be the backs. The former is one of the heaviest boys to make the team. He bucks the line in fine style and kicks the ball well. Buck is an old football player and will captain the team. He was captain of the Forrest A. C. of 1897-98, and played on the Central A. C. team last year A. C. team last year

Records of the New York Cricket Associa-

The New York Cricket Association brought ts series of championship games to a conclusion on last Saturday, and the Paterson club may now once again be declared the champions of the association. The victors thoroughly deserved the trophy, for their exhibition of the game in all its departments throughout the season was first class in every respect-Brooklyn and Kings county had a keen struggle for second place, and by twice defeating their rivals the Kings county men obtained the coveted place, which they firmly believe is but the stepping stone to the championship which they hope to obtain next year. The games, as a rule, were closely contested and the series throughout was followed with con-siderable interest. The records: SUMMARY OF CHAMPIONSHIP SCHEDULE

In the contest for the batsman's prize, F. G. Warburton easily leads all competitors with an average of 30.70 for twelve innings. A. S. Durrant of Brooklyn also batted in good style in the five innings played by him, but W. Clarkson, the only player besides Warburton to exceed 200 runs, exhibited more consistency. Altogether 129 men took part in the contest, and of these, only twenty-five finished the season in double figures.

Bunce of Paterson heads the bowlets, but as he has not delivered the required number of balls, he has not qualified for the prize. This will probably go to W. Dodds, who has taken thirty-six wickets for 5.58 apiece. A. Rice of Kearny has a fractionally better average, but as his club has withdrawn from the association he is ineligible. The averages:

When Labor Day was established as a holiday clubs and promoters of every pastime seized on it as a fitting occasion for fail ventures, and the fixtures for the day have grown in importance and numbers since, untithere is now no holiday that can surpass Labor Day for the number and variety of the attrac tions presented for sportsmen.

The Knickerbocker A. C. will cater to several sections of the sporting public with an athletic carnival on the club grounds at Bayonne, N. J. In addition to a regular programme of track and field events, the Cherry Diamond management has organized bicycle and swim ming races, a game of association football and a contest on the baseball diamond between the home team and the Carteret F. nine. The athletic events will be signalized by the first appearance in this country since their return of many of the American team who were victorious at the Paris international games. These will include R. Sheldon of the New York A. C., who defeated Dennis Horgan, the holder of the world's record at shot putting; Alexander Grant, University of Pennsylvania, and John Bray of Williams College. Sheldon will attempt to beat the world's record of 45 feet ½ inch for the event. The games of the Greater New York Irish A. A. at Ceitte Park are also expected to draw a big crowd, as in addition to a number of Metropolitan cracks scheduled to compete in the handicap events, there will be some rousing team play in the Gaelio games of hurling and football. The professionals will have a fleid day at Washington Park, Maspeth, where the forty-fourth annual games of the New York Caledonian Club will take place for money prizes. Yachtemen will find plenty to engage their attention. The open regatta of the Atlantio Y. C., off Sea Gate will attract a number of the fast boats, while the equally popular Larchmont Y. C. is expected to furnish good sport with its fall regatta.

The chief cycling event will be the 25-mile cycle path handicap on the Coney Island paths, while numerous track race meets will take place within easy wheeling distance of New York, Golf will have its thomsands of devotees, either playing the game or watching the many important tournaments set for decision, while the followers of tyetting, lawn who were victorious at the Paris international Middle States Regatta Association at Harlem Caparsie Yachts Race in a Gale.

A number of accidents occurred at the annual fall open regatta of the Canarsie Yacht Club, which was sailed yesterday off Sands Point, Jamaica Bay. The southwest wind developed into a gale that split sails, snapped masts and brought almost every boat over the line in a more or less damaged condition. The course was about ten miles. Fifteen boats started, almost, immediately the mast of Hernert Sparr's Tam O'Shanta, snapped off close to the deck and her rigging and standing gear came down with a rush. Then D. J. Roger's Pauline B split her main sail off Waterman's Isand, and retired. F. McGeehan's Siren was disabled off Barren Island. Other yachts were compelled to withdraw owing to heavy weather off Barren Island.

The Lillie S. W. Scheer, Jamaica Bay Yacht Club, won the prize for the fastest time over the course and the Jennie, W. J. Gallagher, also of the Jamaica Bay Yacht Club, carried off the second prize. The winners in each class follow:
